

conditions to the above-described basic construction.

Further, in accordance with the present invention, it is possible to use from a liquid crystal display of an ordinary pixel density to a liquid crystal display of a high-definition screen with high pixel density, making it possible to obtain a transfer image of a desired clarity from among images ranging from a photographic image that is satisfactory from the practical viewpoint to a high definition transfer image of higher clarity.